

State Ethics Commission Announces New Online Training Program

The State Ethics Commission is pleased to announce the upcoming launch of a new conflict of interest law online training program and learning platform. All state, county, and municipal employees will soon be able to complete the conflict of interest law education requirements more easily.

The new online training features engaging, tailored content for public employees

After self-registering to access the new conflict of interest law online training program on the Commission's learning platform, you can complete it on your desktop, laptop, or mobile device. The new program has relevant content specific to your public position and is available in four languages.

Public agencies can now easily keep track of their employees' compliance records

The new program provides tools to help those tasked with keeping track of employee compliance with the conflict of interest law education requirements to do this work more efficiently. With automatic tracking, you can view reports and message your employees without the need to keep paper records.

Please reach out to the Commission for more information or to ask any questions
